PRESIDENT WILSON WILL PERSONALLY DECIDE ON REPLY

Has Not Announced Answer to Ambassador Gerard's Message.

OFFICIALS PERPLEXED

Government's Position Was Stated Clearly in Last Note.

Washington, July 7.—President Wilson personally will decide what reply, if any, shall be sent to Ambassador Gerard's message outlining the tentative draft of a note submitted to him informally as a proposed answer to the American communication concerning submarine warfare.

Secretary Lansing and others have transmitted to the President at Cornish, N. H., their views on the policy they believe ought to be pursued. It was stated officially tonight, however, that no word had been received as to the President's position. It was intimated that Mr. Wilson might not be ready to act until Friday as the delicate questions involved require care and deliberation.

During the day Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador back from his summer home at Cedarhurst, asked Mr. Lansing informally concerning the latest phases of the negotiations in Berlin. The secretary outlined in a general way what had been transmitted by Ambassador Gerard but gave no intimation as to the course the United States would follow. Count von Bernstorff had, he said, no advices of his own concerning the situation.

It was said that Count von Bernstorff learned that Ambassador Gerard's message was not of a character which necessarily would require an answer. There is little doubt in official quarters that the German proposals in their present form would be unacceptable to the United States.

Situation Perplexing Officials.

The situation is perplexing officials here because they are reluctant to engage in an informal discussion of questions they hold were stated clearly in the American note.

It was said that Ambassador Gerard's message did not make clear whether Germany had asked him to obtain the views of the United States on the tentative draft or whether in showing him a copy the implication was that the American government could comment on it before the note was completed. After his conference here, the ambassador asked if the State Department had any instructions for him.

Some of the President's advisers seem to think advantage should be taken of the opportunity to reiterate that the United States having stated its position can make no concessions or consider any temporary arrangements until there is a clear understanding on Germany's attitude toward the principle compelling visit and search before destroying unresisting merchantmen.

While the optimism which has prevailed in official quarters as a result of Ambassador Gerard's early messages has to some extent been dissipated by the unsatisfactory character of proposals in the tentative draft, the situation still was regarded as susceptible of a friendly settlement. Emphasis was laid on the fact that the German foreign office apparently seemed anxious to learn the minimum of the American demands and the belief which expressed that further conference with our departments of the governments and even with Emperor William himself might be planned in the event that the proposed note as shown to Ambassador Gerard was not viewed favorably by the United States.

Secretary Lansing said no intimation had come as to the date when the German reply would be formally delivered to Ambassador Gerard.

STUDIED MESSAGES.

President Buried Himself Over Gerard's Information on Note.

Cornish, N. H., July 7.—President Wilson spent several hours today studying messages from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin outlining the position of the German government toward submarine warfare and later forwarded a reply to Secretary Lansing which was understood to contain instructions as to what should be communicated to Berlin.

The President expects the German note some time next week and plans to return to Washington to work out the American answer with Secretary Lansing and others.

The President played golf today and also motored through Vermont and New Hampshire. Tonight he gathered his family about him and read to them.

CONGRESS URGED TO SUBMIT PROHIBITION AMENDMENT

By Directors of Anti-Saloon League of America.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—The National Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of America at an executive session today, adopted a resolution urging Congress to submit to the states a national prohibition amendment. Another resolution passed urges legislation that will prevent use of the mails for advertising intoxicating liquors in dry territory.

The board commended President Wilson for refusing to renounce despite strong pressure, a letter he is said to have written while governor of New Jersey to a citizen of Texas declaring state prohibition is proper where public sentiment is ripe for it.

LIBRARY of CONGRESS WASHINGTON, D. C.

In Many Places Already Pr... aging, Says Report.

NO NEWS OF FIG... G

Officers of Warring Factions, it is Stated, Have Failed to Co-operate in Feeding the Hungry—Native Fruits Food.

Washington, July 7.—News of the result of Carranza's latest attempt to drive the Zapata garrison out of Mexico City was awaited with anxiety here tonight. No word from the fighting has come since it was announced from Vera Cruz two days ago that General Gonzales' reinforced Carranza army had renewed its attack with the expectation of an easy victory.

Apprehension had been somewhat relieved during the day, however, by receipt of a dispatch at the State Department from Vera Cruz stating that the investing Carranza forces intended to facilitate attempts of foreigners to quit the capital and to transmit their messages to the outside world. The department's advices added that the Carranza officials were confident of taking Mexico City in a "short time."

Measures for relief of non-combatants were continued today. Consul General Hanna at Monterey reported to the Red Cross that he was feeding 16,000 persons from American relief supplies. Chinese legation officials here arranged with the State Department and the Red Cross for the care of destitute Chinese in Mexico.

Eliseo Arrendondo, Carranza's agent in Washington, reiterated in a statement tonight that in those parts of Mexico over which Carranza was in control there is no famine danger and "no shortage of foodstuff supplies so serious as to threaten hunger even to the poorest of our population in the future, immediate or distant."

The convention between the Red Cross and officials of Villa agency here over the attitude of Villa's officers toward relief measures resulted in a statement tonight from the agency that Villa forces had offered every aid to alleviate suffering in war disturbed districts. Miss Mabel Boardman, of the Red Cross, asserted there had been lack of co-operation by both Villa and Carranza officers.

Dispatches to the State Department from Mexico said that Quanajuato had been occupied by Villa troops and that Villa forces also had recovered the towns of Cedral and Matehuala.

Other dispatches said that a battle had been in progress for about six days in the vicinity of Paredon.

The Carranza agency announced the receipt of a dispatch declaring the Villa army had been "completely routed" by the Carranza forces at Villa Garcia between Monterey and Paredon. Villa forces were said to have suffered a loss of 600 killed and wounded. The agency added that a second fight nearer Paredon also had resulted in a Carranza success.

Famine is Impending.

Thousands of Mexican non-combatants have eaten nothing but native fruits for months; where famine is not ravaging it is impending and only a hunger truce between the warring factions can save the lives of a multitude, according to a report to the American Red Cross dated from its field agent July 2. It follows:

"After six days' journey of about 500 miles through Northern Mexico, including large portions of the states of Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipos, I am compelled to state that famine conditions existing have been understated rather than exaggerated. Famine is not ravaging it is impending. Where land is not already famine stricken, starvation draws ever nearer. Meagre corn crop in sight will not feed half the people and a great amount of it will be or has been taken by military authorities, whose needs are only slightly pressing than those of civilian population.

"A hunger truce between the factions might save the hundreds of thousands of lives now menaced. If a hun-

SUBMARINES WILL BE EQUIPPED WITH GUNS

New Three-Inch Disappearing Weapon Perfected.

Secretary Daniels Announces Successful Efforts of the Ordnance Bureau—All Under-Water Craft to be Equipped.

Washington, July 7. — A three-inch disappearing gun for the submarine has been perfected by the navy ordnance bureau, Secretary Daniels announced today, and in the future all American unde-water craft will be equipped with these weapons for surface fighting.

Mr. Daniels said every test had resulted satisfactorily, and that within ten days the gun and its carriage would be sent from the ordnance factory here to New York, for mounting on the new submarine M-1, underf construction.

For nearly two years naval experts have been working on a weapon for use of submarines which would not delay the clearing of decks for diving.

BOMBS DISCOVERED ON THREE VESSELS

...ailed From New York to Europe in May.

PLOT WAS UNCOVERED

Plan to Destroy Munitions Had Been Defined, It is Said—Story of Passenger on One of the Steamers Confirmed.

New York, July 7.—Three ships sailing from this port to Europe and reaching there last May, it was learned from an authoritative source today, were found to have unexploded bombs aboard, placed there in this city before sailing.

Two of the three vessels were the British steamship Bankdale, which left New York May 7th for Havre, and Lord Erne, which sailed April 29 for the same destination.

In each case, it was said, the bombs had been placed aboard a vessel carrying automobiles and other supplies for the French army. An investigation is being made by Department of Justice agents, city detectives and French government representatives, it is said.

The bombs were found among the cargoes. At least one of them consisted of two large iron cylinders, one containing acid and the other an explosive which would be set off when the acid should eat its way through the walls of the cylinder. The plot was frustrated in each case, it was said, by failure of the acid to penetrate the iron.

The existence of a well-defined plot to destroy war munitions, it was said, had been uncovered. Announcement that the bombs had been discovered was made by a steamship man of high standing in this city, who confirmed the story told today by H. C. Hill, a passenger of the steamer Espagne. Mr. Hill said that one such bomb had been found on a vessel which he declined to name because he thought its designation might hamper the investigation. For the same reason the steamship man confirming the attempts to wreck steamers declined to allow his name to be used.

The third steamer, it is learned, also sailed for Havre, but put into Falmouth.

The Blankdale and Lord Erne, both British freight ships, were under charter of the French Line. Officials of the line today declined to discuss the matter further than to say the two ships had sailed under charter and that they did not carry passengers.

Other Destructive Plots.

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Lansing said today that several weeks ago reports had been informally called to his attention by some of the embassies here of alleged plots to destroy plants manufacturing munitions of war or to place bombs on ships leaving American ports and that the subject had been referred to the Department of Justice. He had not heard, however, that any evidence had been found to prove that such plots existed.

HAS ATTENTION CALLED TO POISON SHELLS AD.

Germans Cite Ambassador Gerard to Supposed Manufacture in U. S.

Berlin, via London, July 7.—The German foreign office today formally called the attention of James W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, to the advertisement of the Cleveland Automatic Machine Company in the American Machinist of May 6th on poisoned shells pointing out that such shells are a contravention of The Hague convention.

The Department of Commerce at Washington announced on July 2 that an investigation had showed that the Cleveland concern which published the advertisement relative to the manufacture of poisonous shells did not manufacture explosives of any kind but merely made machines capable of use in the producton of shells and ammunition. The department held that no intentional violation of neutrality was involved and that the confusion was the result of unfortunate wording of the advertisement.

CASE AGAINST HUERTA MAY BE THROWN ASIDE

Believed Legal Proceedings Would be Abandoned.

Unofficial Reports in Washington to the Effect that There Will Be No Prosecution—Messages Are Exchanged.

Washington, July 7.—It was believed here tonight that the case against General Huerta, charged with conspiracy to violate American neutrality by inciting a new Mexican revolution, might be abandoned.

Huerta is due to appear next week before a United States commissioner for a hearing. Although officials are reticent, persistent reports are current that there will be no prosecution and that Huerta will agree to leave the Mexican border and take up his residence somewhere in the northern part of the United States, to interfere no more in Mexican politics.

It was pointed out tonight in official quarters that such a settlement would accomplish the chief end desired by the government—prevention of Huer-

ERICH MUENTER AND FRANK HOLT ONE AND THE SAME MAN.

Erich Muenter,
Former Instructor in German at Harvard.

Frank Holt,
Former Instructor in German at Cornell.

Frank Holt, who attempted to take the life of J. P. Morgan and who committed suicide in the Mineola jail Tuesday night, yesterday was identified as Erich Muenter, the Harvard instructor who disappeared after being indicted as the murderer of his wife, Leona, at Cambridge, Mass., in 1906.

The identification was made by S. P. Smith, state detective of the District Attorney's office of Middlesex county; Theodore Hillier, an automobile man of Cambridge, and A. T. Brown, a Boston newspaper man.

Erich Muenter was of German birth; Frank Holt admitted that he was of German descent, although claiming birth in this country. Where, he did not tell.

The handwriting of Holt shown in the picture is from the long letter he wrote Sunday, July 4, to his father-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Sensabaugh, in Dallas, Tex. It shows a peculiar mixture of various styles, and may have been disguised to prevent comparison with the handwriting of Muenter.

Pictures of Muenter, sent to Glen Cove from cambridge, show a close resemblance between the former Harvard professor and Holt. Attendants who looked at Holt, with a picture of the man wanted for the murder of his wife in 1906 in their hands, declared that with his beard shaven off Muenter might easily be Holt.

P. W. Hiller of 107 Oxford street, Cambridge, the house in which Mrs. Muenter died, who lived under the Muenters while they were in Cambridge, said that Holt and Muenter were the same, judging from the picture of Holt shown to him.

A. E. Long, the undertaker who prared Mrs. Muenter's body for the funeral, when shown a picture of Holt said that it was a striking resemblance to Muenter.

A dispatch from Chicago said that two University of Chicago professors identified a photograph of Holt as a likeness of Muenter.

HOLT IS IDENTIFIED AS ERICH MUENTER

Harvard Instructor Indicted for Wife Murder.

NO FURTHER DOUBT

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 7.—Frank Holt, who attempted to take the life of J. P. Morgan and who committed suicide last night in the Mineola jail, today was identified as Erich Muenter, the Harvard instructor who disappeared after being indicted as the murderer of his wife, Leona, in Cambridge, Mass., in 1906.

The identification was made by S. P. Smith, state detective of the district attorney's office of Middlesex county, Massachusetts; Theodore Hillier, an automobile man of Cambridge, and A. T. Brown, a Boston newspaper man.

The identification came after the three men, Smith, Hillier and Brown, had made a careful examination of the body. Smith said the gold bridge in Holt's upper right jaw was the same as that in the mouth of Muenter. The Massachusetts detective declared he was positive of his identification.

Hillier, who lived with Muenter and who drove him to the railroad station the night he disappeared, was positive and so was Brown who had known Muenter personally.

Smith brought with him the Bertillon measurement of Muenter and they tallied with Holt's measurements.

District Attorney Lewis J. Smith, of Nassau county, announced he considered it definitely established that Muenter and Holt were the same person.

O'Ryan Tries Tgain.

Jeremiah O'Ryan, the keeper who was on guard at Holt's cell when Holt committed suicide had recovered his composure today sufficiently to tell a connected story. O'Ryan said he had been employed by Sheriff Pettit to guard the prisoner from 8 p. m. to 8 a. m. Last night at 8 o'clock O'Ryan went to the entrance of Holt's cell. Holt seemed to be cheerful.

"I had some food today and managed to retain it in my stomach," O'Ryan said Holt told him. "I feel much better, but I must get some sleep.

WAS A GENTLEMAN WHILE AT HARVARD

Muenter Never Betrayed Dual Personality There.

TILL DEATH OF HIS WIFE

After Disappearing Nine Years Ago His Pamphlet Showed Diseased Mind—Circumstances of Wife's Death Recited.

Cambridge, Mass., July 7.—The dual personality of Erich Muenter, alias Frank Holt, was not betrayed to his associates when he was an instructor at Harvard University. The first evidence of a diseased mind was contained in a pamphlet which he is supposed to have written and mailed from New Orleans to President Eliot and members of the faculty after he had fled from Cambridge in the face of charges that he had murdered his wife with poison.

Considered by his intimates as eccentric, Muenter nevertheless was regarded as a diligent student and courteous gentleman who was not likely to do anything to attract particular attention. The issuance of the booklet created astonishment, as it was a bitter tirade against society threatening revenge upon the community which he declared had unjustly accused him. The writer gave convincing proof of an unbalanced mind.

Taught German at Harvard.

Muenter came to Harvard in 1904 with a degree from the University of Chicago and record of service as an instructor in the University of Kansas. Entering at Harvard as a candidate for the advanced degree of doctor of philosophy he received an appointment as instructor in the elementary German course. He was accompanied here by his wife, former Leone Krembs, of Chicago, and their one-year-old daughter.

On April 6, 1906, a second child was born. Mrs. Muenter, believing in mental healing, did not call in a physician until just before the birth of the infant and the physician withdrew from the case when he learned that his directions were not being followed. A mental healer and a nurse attended Mrs. Muenter. At midnight on April 15, Muenter told the nurse to get some rest and said he would stay with the patient. At 6 o'clock the following morning he informed the nurse that Mrs. Muenter had died. The physician whose advice had been disregarded re-

NO BOMBS ABOARD STEAMER SAXONIA

Seemingly No Foundation to Holt's Warning.

TENSION NOT RELIEVED

Believed That Explosives Might Have Been Placed on Other Vessels—The Philadelphia Also is Heard From.

New York, July 7. — Fears for the safety of the Cunard liner Saxonia were dissipated late today when a wireless message saying no bombs were aboard, was received from her captain in answer to a warning sent out that Frank Holt had asserted that this boat or the American liner Philadelphia were in danger of internal explosions. Earlier a reply had been received from the Philadelphia that no bombs were found aboard her.

However, the tension caused by the warning of the man who set off the capitol bomb, then shot J. P. Morgan, and finally killed himself, was not entirely relieved, because it was not known that he had not left explosives aboard other steamers.

Both the Saxonia and the Philadelphia left New York July 3 for Liverpool. The Philadelphia is due to dock on the other side July 10 or 11; the Saxonia should reach her destination July 13 or 14. Both boats were in mid-ocean today. Holt had written that steamers leaving New York July 3 will be destroyed in mid-ocean by an explosion.

Holt's Letter to Wife.

Holt's warning was contained in a letter to his wife, at Dallas, Texas, and which was forwarded to the State Department at Washington, by her attorney, J. E. Cockrell.

The text of Holt's letter follows:

"A steamer leaving New York for Liverpool should sink, God willing, on the 7th. It is the Philadelphia or Saxony (Saxonia), but I am not sure that these left on the second or third."

On the margin of the letter was written:

RUSSIANS WAGING A HEAVY CAMPAIGN AGAINST INVADERS

TURKS SUFFER LOSSES

Allies Only Six Miles From Narrows of the Dardanelles.

London, July 7.—By the employment of strong reinforcements the Russians, temporarily at least, have checked the Austro-German advance toward the Lublin railway which, if successful, would imperil Warsaw. The Russians yesterday claimed a serious defeat for the Austro-German army in the region of Krasnik, south of that railway, while the Austrians tonight state that "the battle was invigorated by the participation of strong Russian reserves."

So far as communications are concerned, the Russians now have the advantage of positions, as they have a splendid system of railways behind them by which they can quickly move troops and guns to the threatened arens.

This battle, one of many since the Austro-Germans commenced their drive through Galicia, has just commenced, but according to dispatches received in Geneva from Austrian sources, the Russians thus far have had the best of it and since Monday have inflicted heavy losses on the invaders.

In the Western Theatre.

These dispatches state that thousands of wounded are arriving in Lemberg, Przemysl and Jaroslau. The much heralded German onslaught in the West has been confined to the Woevre section, where the army of the German crown prince is trying to regain ground lost in April when the French attempts to force the withdrawal of what is known as the St. Mihiel wedge. The Germans have won some trenches at the tip of the wedge, but at other points the French claim, they were repulsed with heavy losses.

Artillery combats continue from Arras to the sea and it is stated tonight that as a result of German bombardment Arras is in flames and its cathedral destroyed. The Germans also claim to have re-taken trenches lost to the British north of Ypres yesterday. However, the fighting here appears to be desultory, despite reports of the arrival of large German reinforcements for any try at Calais.

On the Gallipoli peninsula Sunday the Turks made their third attempt within a week to regain ground the Allies took in their last attack. This offensive, like others, resulted, according to British and French reports, in the complete discomfiture of the Turks, who are said to have suffered severely.

The Allies are only six miles from their goal, the narrows of the Dardanelles, but the country is strongly fortified and a gain of a few hundred yards is all that can be expected at one time. There is talk of a new combined land and sea attack.

TURKISH FORCES FAILED

London, July 7.—The Turkish forces completely failed in the big attack which they began on July 4th against the Anglo-French forces on the Dardanelles, according to a statement today by the British official press bureau which added that the Turks lost heavily. The text of the statement follows:

"General Sir Ian Hamilton reports that the night of July 3-4 was quiet in the northern section; but at 4 A. M. the enemy started a heavy bombardment of the trenches. All the guns used previously against us and some new ones were in action, but the bombardment died away about 6 A. M. without doing much damage.

"In the southern section the Turks kept up a heavy musketry fire along the whole line during the night and did not leave their trenches. At 4 A. M. their batteries started the most violent bombardment that has yet been experienced. At least 5,000 rounds of artillery ammunition were expended by them.

"Meanwhile this shelling of our lines on the peninsula proved the preliminary to a general attack on our front with special efforts at certain points. The principal effort was made at the junction of the Royal Naval division section with that of the French.

"Here, at 7:30 A. M. the Turks drove back our advanced troops and assaulted a portion of the line held by the Royal Naval division. Some 50 Turks gained a footing in our trench where, nevertheless, some men of the Royal Naval division held on to our supports and the men who had retired counter-attacked immediately and hurled the Turks out of the trench again.

"Another attack on the right of the 29th division section was practically wiped out by rifle and machine gun fire. On our left the Turks attempted several attacks. None of these were able to get home owing to the steadiness of our troops and our effective artillery support. The bombardment died down towards 11 A. M., though it was resumed at intervals.

"Not only was the result a complete failure, but while our losses were negligible and no impression was made on our line, the enemy added a large number to his recent very heavy casualties. It seems plain from the disjointed nature of his attack that he is finding it difficult to drive his infantry forward to face our fire."

HOMICIDE AT WASHINGTON, N. C.

Ben Hewett Kills Cale Forbes, Found Talking to His Wife.

Elibazeth City, N. C., July 7.—News has reached here that Cale Forbes was shot and instantly killed by Ben Hewett at the latters' home last Sunday afternoon at about 3 o'clock. Forbes, who lived about three miles from the Hewett home, came up to the house and was talking to Mrs. Hewett through the kitchen window when Hewett appeared on the scene and ordered Forbes off the premises. Hot words ensued and Forbes, who is a man of considerable physical strength, is reported to have threatened to tear Hewett limb from limb. At any rate, Hewett picked up a shot gun and standing barely six feet away from Forbes fired, the load entering the man's body below the left breast and tearing a great hole through his side.

That Hewett objected to Forbes' attentions to his wife is the reason assigned for the altercation.

Hewett was arrested and carried to Camden. He was held to Superior Court and released on $250 bond.

NAVIGATION AND PILOTAGE

Regular Monthly Meeting of Commissioners Held Yesterday—Official Record of Proceedings.

Wilmington, N. C., July 7, 1915.

Regular monthly meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage was held today at the office of the chairman, with the following present: Chairman James Sprunt, Commissioners H. G. Smallbones, William St. George and Thos. F. Wood, and Clerk Jno. T. Rankin.

Reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with, they having been published in the newspapers at the time and read by the Commissioners.

Report of the monthly bar soundings committee was read and approved.

Application of Pilot J. F. Arnold to transfer his pilot boat number and license from the launch "Pearl" to the launch "Emma" was approved, and the Clerk was requested to make the proper entry.

Application of Mr. E. F. St. George for apprenticeship under the direction and instruction of his uncle, Pilot Thomas St. George, was granted. The Clerk was requested to make the necessary entry.

Application of Mr. J. T. Sellers for apprenticeship under the direction and instruction of his half-brother, Pilot J. S. Sellers, was granted. The Clerk was requested to make the necessary entry.

The Chairman stated that he had received a communication from Pilot T. M. Morse dated May 17th requesting that a committee of three pilots be appointed for the purpose of ascertaining if it is possible to form an association in order to harmonize the pilot system and render better service by employing better class boats; also by placing the responsibility upon a particular crew; also in order that a general discussion of pilot affairs could be had which might result in better understanding and mutual benefit.

The Chairman, having appointed a committee for this purpose after conferring with the Commissioners, received a letter from Pilot William St. George deprecating the proposed conference, as the time was inopportune and the circumstances discouraging, and suggesting that the matter be postponed and more particularly that he be excused from serving. The matter has, therefore, been left in abeyance for the action of the Board today. Upon motion of Commissioner Smallbones this matter, which is of some importance, was laid upon the table for action at a more convenient time.

The Clerk was instructed to cancel the pilot boat license issued to Pilot J. S. Sellers, this action being taken at Pilot Sellers' request. The Clerk was further instructed to notify Pilot Sellers of this action.

The following communication was received from Major H. W. Stickle:

"June 15, 1915. HWS-JAT.

"Mr. James Sprunt, Chairman, Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage, Wilmington, N. C.

"Dear Sir.—Referring to correspondence in April with reference to obstructions to navigation in Southport harbor, a survey in the locality has been made and no changes of moment have occurred. The 24-foot mean low-water channel at its narrowest point in front of Southport is nearly 600 feet wide. The blue print of the survey is herewith for your information.

"Very respectfully,
(Signed) "H. W. STICKLE.
"Major, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A."

The Chairman of this Board having united with the Chamber of Commerce in a petition through Senator Simmons to the War Department urging the postponement of the relief of Major H. W. Stickle from his present station, the following answer was sent to Senator Simmons who has forwarded it to this board.

"Washington, May 29, 1915.
"Hon. F. M. Simmons, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

"Sir:—1. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th instant, enclosing letters from the President of the Chamber of Commerce and the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage, of Wilmington, N. C., and also from Mr. Thos. H. Sutton, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, of Fayetteville, N. C., urging the postponement of the relief of Major H. W. Stickle, Corps of Engineers, from his present station at Wilmington, N. C.

"2. The Chief of Engineers is gratified if Major Stickle's efforts have met with the approval of those with whom he has dealt officially, but the circumstances of the service are such as to render it necessary to transfer him elsewhere.

"3. Captain C. S. Ridley, Corps of Engineers, who is to relieve Major Stickle, has been on duty in Wilmington district for over two years, and it is confidently believed that the work of that district will be administered by him to the entire satisfaction of the commercial interests of the district.

"Very respectfully,
(Signed) "DAN C. KINGMAN,
"Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army."

The Chairman having informed the Board officially that Captain C. S. Ridley, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, would shortly assume command of the river and harbor work af and above Wilmington, with headquarters at Wilmington, succeeding Major H. W. Stickle, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, the Board immediately addressed the following letter to Captain Ridley:

"July 7, 1915.
"Captain C. S. Ridley, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., Wilmington, N. C.

"Dear Sir:—We are gratified to learn that you will succeed Major H. W. Stickle, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A. in charge of the River and Harbor work in the Cape Fear river at and below Wilmington, not only because you have become familiar with the details of this important work under your highly esteemed commander, Major Stickle, but chiefly because we believe you recognize the importance of a cordial co-operation in your official capacity with the civil organizations of this port, which desire to unite with the Engineers in the object of their endeavor, the promotion of the River and Harbor work, and the development of the commerce of Wilmington. To that end we respectfully pledge our cordial support and good will. "Yours very truly,

"JAMES SPRUNT, Chairman,
"J. W. HARPER, Vice Chairman,
"H. G. SMALLBONES, Commissioner
"WILLIAM ST. GEORGE, Com.
"THOS. F. WOOD, Commissioner.
"JNO. T. RANKIN, Clerk of Board."

The Clerk was requested to give notice to the pilots upon whose bond the name of the late H. W. Hood appears, that they must substitute another endorsement.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

JNO. T. RANKIN, Clerk.

BANKERS AND FARMERS NEED TO CO-OPERATE

Should be No Competition Between the Two.

Addresses Before the Banker-Farmer Conference Which Began Yesterday at Chicago—Banker Not Symbol of Wealth.

Chicago, July 7.—The Banker-Farmer Conference called by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers' Association was called to order here today by B. F. Harris, of Champaign, Ill., chairman of the commission. In the course of his address Mr. Harris remarked that the American banker individually is not the symbol of wealth he is generally believed to be. "The American bankers assumes the greatest responsibility to the public, renders it the largest service for the least remuneration and should have its confidence in like measure," said Mr. Harris.

"The average American banker, like the average business man and citizen is not a big man financially. Fifty-five per cent of the 14,300 members of the American Bankers' Association have a banking capital of $25,000 or less, while 75 per cent have a capital of $100,000 or less. If all our 28,000 bankers are considered, at least 75 per cent have capital of $25,000 or less. The average banker is truly "one of the people" with several of his neighbor farmers and merchants as big or a bigger 'magnate' than is he.

"As of necessity the banker occupies a more or less commanding position in his community, therefore his voice should always be on the side which is not alone for the upbuilding of his community from the money-making side, but for progress along all lines of public welfare.

"This is our fourth annual conference of the committees on agriculture and education from the various state bankers associations and of the Agricultural Commission.

"We are working to help solve some of our greatest state and national problems—to check some of our greatest sources of waste—we are taking interest in the farmer better art, resulting in larger crops and a richer soil. We will help to demonstrate that a real farm is the best place in which the farmer can invest and that improved methods and plant will bring larger returns and make assurance doubly sure. We can teach that the real farmer is a combination of grain and live stock farmer, saving his fertility and getting two prices for his crops by feeding them to live stock.

"Much of the success of all this program—as of all commercial and industrial activities of the nation—is dependent upon better marketing and distribution efficiencies as well as proper and ample credit facilities, with the perfection of which we are in especial sympathy.

"The only thing that has saved the American farmer so far has been increase in crop prices and land values.

"It required a campaign of 25 years in Germany to arise the average wheat yield 10 bushels per acre.

MR. GEO. MOORE LOSES FOOT

Rocky Mount, N. C., July 7.—As the result of the only Independence Day casualty to occur in this city or this section, Mr. George Moore is in the Atlantic Coast Line Relief Hospital with a mangled left leg that has made amputation necessary just below the knee. Mr. Moore was a passenger for this city and was returning last night on train No. 90 when at a point in the yards at South Rocky Mount the passenger attempted to get off the train, to be thrown under the train and suffered the mangling of the limb. The injured man is 58 years old and is an employe in the car department of the railroad at South Rocky Mount, his home is on the Nashville road near Raleigh road intersection, and it is believed that the man who was returning from a week-end over the holiday stay in Norfolk, was attempting to leave the train at South Rocky Mount when he stepped from the moving train.

REQUEST EXTRADITION OF BROWN TO SOUTH CAROLINA

Harrisburg, Pa., July 7. — Application was made to Governor Brumbaugh, today, by Attorney General J. H. Peebles and Prosecutor George Bell Timmerman, of South Carolina, for extradition to South Carolina of Frederick Brown, charged with murder. On a plea that if Brown were given up he would be in danger of lynching, the governor recently refused extradition.

South Carolina officials told the governor today that Pennsylvania was morally and legally bound to give up the prisoner. Mr. Timmerman said South Carolina was concerned in the administration of justice, and that Brown was in no danger except from the electric chair or the penitentiary. He answered the charges of lawlessness by saying South Carolina was not the only State to have such experiences.

The governor took no action, requesting that briefs be filed.

Hillsboro, Ala.—J. W. Turner, of this place, says: "I ought to have written you two weeks ago, but failed to do so. I got well and then forgot to write you. I am so thankful to know there is such a good remedy to cure people of pellagra."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It 's your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

THEATRICAL

Mary Pickford today at the Grand. That dainty little favorite of the screen will be seen in a five act comedy drama, "Behind the Scenes." It draws a picture of life under varying colors and aspects, with different governing conditions. But throughout the various environments in which the story develops, Mary Pickford as the little actress is true to her character and her art.

The construction of the drama is exceedingly well molded, with the basis of interest an appeal indelibly associated with the central character. The greatest incentive for sympathy comes of the perplexing situation in which the actress finds herself when the success she had so longed and striven for turns to ashes in her grasp because she cannot share it with the man she loves. Can you imagine how well Mary Pickford will work this plot out for you? First of all it is just the kind of a play that suits her and affords her so many opportunities to show herself at her best. Miss Pickford is supported by an adequate and capable cast, including James Kirkwood, Lowell Sherman, Ida Waterman and Russell Bassett, and under the personal direction of Daniel Frohman, which in itself is the best assurance for a great production.

A Vitagraph one-reeler will produce a cartoon comedy which is an added feature, "Bunny in Bunnyland." A side-splitting concoction of fun and imaginary doings of the well known and celebrated apostle of mirth, Carl Lederer. The admission for today only will be children 5 cents, and adults 10 cents. So don't fail to be on hand; little Mary will expect you.

Today at the Bijou.

Today's big bill at the home of "The Incomparable Movies" is indeed one to tempt anyone out, no matter how disagreeable the weather could possibly be. If it is only hot—that's another matter—for it is well known that the Bijou is the very coolest spot in the city. No one has yet been heard who has been the least bit hot at the Bijou during the heated spell of the past month. Two of the biggest exhaust fans in the city were put in before the hot wave came along, and that's the secret.

Today's bill is headed by that great and thrilling heart-interest drama in beautiful Western outdoor settings, "One Man's Evil," featuring beautiful Edna Maison, who is starring in the Princess Hassan series, with dashing William Clifford playing opposite her. If you like a red-blooded picture of life in the West, of a kindly, open hearted people who are not ashamed of their emotions, nor of showing them, see this picture. It is as big and strong as all outdoors and will hold you spellbound throughout.

"Her Mysterious Escort" is a rousing and thrilling Powers drama that tells a tale of mystery that is seldom rivaled in a single reel production.

King Baggot and Jane Gail appear at their very best in the great single reel "Mis-Mated", that contains as much action as the ordinary two-reel picture. Then there's still another big one today, a great Pathe comedy, "Happy's Mishaps" that will beat anything you've seen this week, almost.

Mary Pickford, in "Behind the Scenes," at the Grand Theatre Today.

A. C. L. GIVEN TWO MONTHS.

In Which to Comply With Kinston's Crossing Gate Ordinance.

Kinston, N. C., July 7.—The Kinston City Council has passed an ordinance giving the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad two months to comply with a recent regulation requiring crossing gates at certain places in the city. Two gates were immediately placed by the Norfolk Southern without protest. The Coast Line's attorneys are understood to have declared the regulation illegal. The city attorney gives a contrary opinion. If the A. C. L. does not comply when the time limit expires the city will serve a warrant upon the company, although the prevailing belief is the railroad will take the matter to higher courts.

EQUALIZATION BOARD HAS NO JURISDICTION.

Can Not Make Reduction in Property Valuation of Assessors.

Elizabeth City, N. C., July 7.—It was the sense of the county commissioners in regular session here yesterday that the county board of equalization would be going beyond their right in making any general sweeping reduction in the property valuations of the county assessors this year.

This does not mean that the county commissioners are out of sympathy or are not in accord with the action taken yesterday at the mass meeting, but they feel that the proper court of appeal in this matter is the county assessor instead of the board of equalization.

There was little business before the commissioners yesterday and their session would have ended before noon, but for the fact they became cognisant of the action of the mass meeting at the court house and wanted to make their attitude plain in time to prevent misunderstanding and confusion. They therefore, summoned Walter Small, chairman of the local committee appointed to take the matter of reduction of assessment up before the Board of Equalization, and suggested to him that the committee go before the county assessor first at any rate and see if a satisfactory adjustment could not be made.

Mr. Small then called the local committees to meet him at the court house next Thursday and it is probable that an understanding may be reached at that time. If not, there will be left time for another meeting before the session of the Board of Equalization.

Mt. Olive, N. C., July 7.—Mrs. Emma Keene, wife of W. R. HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

TOP O' THE MORNING

"While whole nations are stretched upon a Calvary Cross, how incongruous it would be for any of us—any one—to go out to live a selfish life."

—JOHN MOTT.

Says the Savannah news: "A third marriage is considered unlucky in India. Why third?" Why in India?

Looting in the City of Mexico reported a few days ago turns out to have been a raid on a grocery store by starving men, women and children.

New York announces an advance in the prices of machine tools. We won't know what the price of political machine tools will be till this time next year.

The politicians are coming to the front in this country but they are coming in order to be seen and heard. There is no fighting in front of the hustings.

It would be a good joke on the courts and the alienists if the jury should find that Harry Thaw is smart enough to be sent to Congress instead of to Mattenwan.

In order to be the right sort of a husband, a man ought to be willing to be the door mat without insisting on having "welcome" woven into the top of his forehead.

A naturalist states that a giraffe's tongue is 40 inches long. How fortunate we are that a giraffe has no conversational powers and therefore is unable to chew the rag.

When a nation violates neutrality and its apology is accepted, all a nation has to do is to violate neutrality whenever it is necessary and then apologize so as to make it all right.

Two nations that do not intend to fight might dissolve diplomatic relations, but it would be like two boys who pick up their marbles and quit the game because one of them wants the game played so he can do all the winning.

Frank Holt, who tried to blow up the Capitol and shot J. P. Morgan, is dead. They say Frank committed suicide, but whether he did or not, the coroner found out that his skull was crushed and it was that which caused his death.

Since the war in Europe began, France has bought in this country nearly 300,000 tons of refrigerator beef and 35,000 cattle on the hoof. She now wants 100,000 cattle as soon as they can be concentrated at some port for shipment across the Atlantic.

Our good old friend Vice President Marshall received several threatening letters, but he tore them up and threw them away. Seems as if no man can go around making speeches without making just as many enemies as if he had taken the wrong side in violating neutrality.

Having noted that one Marion Butler has given out an interview in Washington, claiming that North Carolina is ripe for capture by the Republicans next year, the Charlotte News calls it "a voice from the tomb." Anyhow, it reminds us that a political corpse can indulge in a pipe dream now and then.

Representative Gardner says if we were to have a war our navy would be swept from the seas. However, it need not to go out on the open seas where it would have to take chances. The navies of Germany and Great Britain are showing other navies how to stay at home and keep out of trouble.

A Georgian who has been put in jail on account of matrimonial troubles writes in vindication of himself that he has never been known to "tell a lie, shirk an obligation or run away from a fight." Of course, all that may be true, but a man who won't run away from a fight is liable to get into one and have to go to jail in spite of his veracity and integrity.

THE RISKS OF WAR.

The marine underwriters in the United States, Great Britain and other countries, soon after the European war broke out, cancelled policies on ships and cargoes on which the hazard was increased by war. At first they increased the insurance rate on all ships entering the war zones and finally the risks became so great that the insurance companies would not write a policy on shipping that was more apt to be destroyed by German submarines. Both the American and British governments finally were obliged to insure ships and cargoes. Naturally it was a tremendous risk, but Great Britain had to take the risk. We doubt whether the American government insured ships carrying contraband or insured contraband cargoes, but at best a war zone does not afford a healthy risk on any sort of ship or cargo.

The life insurance companies are now raising a pretty point as to their liability for the death of insured persons entering a war zone after official notice by the belligerent governments that such zones should be avoided if possible or entered only after due precaution. The American life insurance companies specializing in casualty risks have made concerted efforts to persuade or require policyholders to sign riders to be attached to their policies relieving the companies from obligation to pay indemnity for "accident or injury, whether fatal or non-fatal, sustained anywhere on land or sea within a war zone in cases where the accident or injury is due to any risk of war." The companies cannot afford to take war zone risks on policies issued in normal times, unless the policyholders give them a release from their liability or pay more premium in proportion to the risks.

Policyholders, of course, do not take kindly to that proposition and numerous refusals have been filed with the insurance companies. A prominent business man in New York refused to sign the rider and went so far as to write a company which carried a policy on his life:

"Because the German nation wishes to use its naval forces in a piratical manner I cannot see that that should change the agreement between an American citizen and an American corporation. If your company seeks protection from the losses that the German pirates may cause it you should apply for protection to the government at Washington."

That "business man" failed to look at it in a business way. He insisted on getting more insurance on his life than the company originally bargained to give him. Of course, the company could look to the government for protection in a way, but the business man insisted on taking a risk for which his company had not insured him, and against which his company put him on notice that he was increasing his own hazard and increasing their risk without extra compensation.

It is strictly a business proposition and not one for a partisan view. The business man might act on his impulse instead of his business sense, only to find that the courts might hold that he took extraordinary risks with his life, after having been warned by the belligerent governments against war zones and after having been counseled by the insurance companies that their policies did not cover such risks as he was taking. Of course, that would be a matter for the courts, and the business man might discover that the courts would find that the insurance company is not liable, after having served due notice.

It is a question of equity for the insurance company and a question of law as to the liability of the company under the circumstances. A policyholder might refuse to sign a rider and then take his chances, only to find that his policy did not make the company liable for a risk which was extraordinary and self-imposed.

However, if the insurance company is not responsible, who is? Is the American government responsible for not keeping its citizens out of the war zones? Is the shipping company liable for carrying passengers into war zones, or would the belligerent which does the damage be liable for indemnity after it shall have served notice of the risk in war zones?

Certainly, if the insurance companies regard it as extra-hazardous to go into the war zones, this country ought to so regard it and put its citizens on due notice that they unnecessarily take chances on their own lives and at the same time are liable to create a situation involving their country in a serious controversy, or perhaps war.

FRANK HOLT'S DEATH.

"Frank Holt Kills Himself, But How is Open Question," were the words finally selected by the news editor to head the story in The Star yesterday concerning the alleged suicide of the man who shot J. P. Morgan and claimed to have attempted to blow up the Capitol at Washington. The headlines used fairly covered the main facts of the story as furnished to this and hundreds of other papers throughout the country by the Associated Press.

The words used in the headlines covered the story as it read, but if the editor had sought to interpret the story rather than adhere to the account given in the telegraphic dispatch, or had attempted to state the facts without regard to the text of the story, he might have used the words, "Frank Holt's Dead Body Found, But Where, Oh Where?" or probably just as well, "Frank Holt Dead, But Who Killed Him is Open Question."

In view of all the circumstances surrounding this remarkable case, the crime with which Holt was charged and which he confessed, in attempting to assassinate Morgan, the crime which he confessed in attempting to blow up the Capitol, the evidence that he was insane and of anarchistic propensities, and the general mystery as to his identity and career, it is apparent on the face of it, regardless of how the conflicting statements as to the means of his death may be cleared up, that there was what seems to have been inexcusable lack of precaution exercised by the prison authorities. If it were possible for Holt to get out of the cell and kill himself or to get possession of some sort of explosive in the cell with which he could end his life, he might as easily have killed the guard or some other person. Besides, since it was known that he was dangerously insane, it was the duty of the state through its representatives to have safeguarded the prisoner against his own violence.

Perhaps the most remarkable phase of the story was the conflicting statements as to where the body was found after death occurred. The first bulletin sent out stated that Holt was found dead in a pool of blood in his cell and that he was supposed to have shot himself. Later the special keeper, O'Ryan, declared with positiveness that when he turned and went to the cell, after having heard a noise like an explosion, he found Holt in a pool of blood in the corner of his cell. The first story sent over the wires for publication stated that Holt had committed suicide by jumping through a jail window, into a court, or corridor, fifty feet below, and crushed his skull. This account was superseded by the later story, which appeared in The Star, which gave various versions of the method by which Holt ended his life, but failing to settle the question. After an hour or two Keeper O'Ryan is reported to have weakened on his first declaration that he found the body in the corner of the cell, and later to have said that he was not sure if it was found in the cell or in the corridor. District Attorney Smith and Warden Hulse held the theory that Holt killed himself by jumping from the top of his cell into the court below (outside the cell, of course), but neither of them nor Dr. Cleghorn, the jail physician, nor any of the several constables, all of whom were on the scene immediately, ever stated where they found the body, whether in the cell or outside, in the corridor or in a court fifty feet below, so far as the Tuesday night report showed. The first man on the scene at first was positive he found the body in the cell; later he was not sure where he found it, and those next on the scene did not state where it was when they reached the spot.

Various rumors were afloat and various theories were advanced as to how Holt met death. One of these was that he was shot from the outside; another that he chewed a percussion cap, etc. From the reports published yesterday morning some people formed the opinion that the prisoner was killed by some other person; that it was not a case of suicide at all. This was not unreasonable or unnatural, as the story published yesterday morning and the reports first sent out, all taken together, were calculated to lead to the belief that there was an effort on the part of somebody interested to cover up something.

Of course, as the death was discovered late at night and the reports had to be completed within a few hours, and in view of the fact that Mineola is somewhat of an out-of-the-way place, it is quite natural that there should be difficulty in getting the real facts for the newspapers. It is quite natural that rumors and reports should conflict, but at this writing is it difficult to understand why there should have been such wide conflict between statements of those in authority and on the scene as to the simple question of where the body was found, if there was no desire on the part of anybody concerned to cover up any of the facts.

We are curious to know where the body was found by the first, second and third man on the scene—whether in his cell, in the corridor, in a court fifty feet below, or in a back alley.

BRITISH LOAN MAY BE HALF A BILLION

The New York Journal of Commerce of Tuesday says the British war loan in this country may be $500,000,000, but no definite arrangements have yet been made for such a loan, so far as the New York bankers will admit. Yet the rumor is rife in financial circles in New York. Leading bankers in New York have been discussing it for some time, and Henry P. Davison, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., is abroad at present negotiating with British officials concerning a loan of huge proportions.

The British loan matter is regarded as of such importance that The Journal of Commerce devotes a column to it. That paper says it is pointed out that in order to insure the success of the sale of the British securities it will be necessary to have the co-operation of all the banks of the country, and that if such a plan for its wide distribution is followed the amount of securities that may be sold will exceed $300,000,000 and may reach as high as $500,000,000.

In some financial quarters the opinion is expressed that it would be wise to have the American underwriters consist of a number of representative bankers from all sections of the country and that the handling of the loan should not be placed exclusively in the hands of a small group of New York banks.

The Journal of Commerce discusses the proposed loan as if it is only a matter of time that arrangements for it will be completed, and furthermore it goes on to say this with reference to the distribution of the loan among the banks throughout the United States:

"It is thought that if the out-of-town bankers are given an opportunity to participate in the underwriting and share in the commission they will make strenuous efforts to sell the securities, but in the event that a few New York institutions endeavor to handle the whole thing the chances for getting a wide distribution are not quite so good and it might be difficult to dispose of the notes.

"It is believed that practically all of the large New York institutions will co-operate and that the principal banks in the larger cities will likewise be taken in."

Of course, only large banks in the South or West could participate in such a loan, as well as loans to other foreign countries, but already there is a rumor that New York banks have notified Southern banks that they will have all sorts of chances to loan money in Europe. This country as a whole may have all sorts of chances to loan money in Europe. This country as a whole may have all the money it may need for its own uses after helping Europe along, but it is feared that if the banks in some sections loan their money in foreign countries capital cannot be had here for developing the South as rapidly as might otherwise be the case.

The New York bankers ought to know how far this country can go in making loans in Europe. Altogether, it is said, the loans made by this country in Europe will amount to two or three billion dollars. At the same time the quicker Europe gets on its feet after the war the better it will be for American trade. By helping Europe to fight her war, however, it would not be the same as loaning money to help repair the waste of war. When we help Europe in a legitimate way we help ourselves, if we do not strain our own resources in doing it.

DON'T START SOMETHING.

Be careful with your pistols and bombs. You might bring on a war like any other fool can do. A boy assassin only twenty years of age brought on the great war now raging in Europe. He fired the shot which started the smouldering fires of hatred and jealousy.

Inflamed popular sentiment or long harbored popular hatred becomes dangerous when it only awaits such an incident to set it off. All cranks and fools ought to be careful with themselves during a critical time like this, and certainly that class of people bear watching when the world is so excited as it is today. The world's temper is up now, and the crack of a pistol or the explosion of a bomb by most any irresponsible person might start something.

Even the newspapers might start something, as they did after the battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor at Havana in 1898. Whether the ship was blown up by an accidental explosion from the inside, as is now supposed, or whether it was blown up by one man or more than one, public sentiment became so inflamed by the American press that President McKinley was swept off his feet into the vortex of war.

One naval officer came very nearly getting us into war with Mexico in April, 1914, because he demanded such a seemingly small thing as a salute, but even the demand for it cost several hundred lives, including more than a score of Americans, and many millions of dollars for us.

CURRENT COMMENT.

We saw passing the other day a young man from the country with a bale of hay, a bag of shipstuff, one sack of corn and one one-horse plow shovel on his wagon, when a man present asked: "Is he farming?" The question was a natural question of course, but what could you answer? He was either a beginner or a failure. If he had bought a farm and this was his initial start his load was all right, but if he had been farming last year and was pitching another crop, his load was all wrong. What future is before the fellow who this early in the spring must begin buying feed for his stock? The question is worth considering and analyzing and if you belong to the class who must begin this early to buy feed, stop where you are and make new resolutions. Resolve first that you will go home and plant more quick growing forage crops, that you will plant some early vegetables, and that for eight months this year you will raise your supplies for the table and for your stock as you go along and be sure of a surplus for the next four months, so that this fall when you gather your crop only a small portion will have to go for running expenses during the summer.—Lee County News.

The statistics collected by the State Department of Public Instruction with regard to the number of adult illiterates in North Carolina show that there is work which should be undertaken by North Carolinians. The many thousands of illiterates in the State are a menace to its progress and increasing prosperity, and the fight to decrease the number should be an unremitting one. The ingenuity of our leaders in educational affairs must be exercised to map out a campaign which will count. In Kentucky the "moonlight school" idea has been found to meet the question in a large degree. Already in this State the "moonlight schools" which have been established are doing a great service; and the signs are that there is going to be a great increase in the number of these schools. The campaign to wipe out this adult illiteracy should be vigorously pushed during the summer months. School vacation time is here and the services of boys and girls, of young men and young women who are occupied at other times of the year can be secured. Wherever these can be induced to start "moonlight schools" everything possible should be done to put these in operation. The very best interests of the State demand that there be work done at once along this line. The problem is a hard one, but it can be solved. State Superintendent Joyner has outlined a plan of campaign which gives promise of being a vast help. In carrying forward his programme he should receive support everywhere in the State, and we believe he will. What is being done by the Junior Order of United American Mechanics blazes a way that should be followed. If every force for education in North Carolina give its best service there can be no reason advanced why illiteracy should not be vanquished. The people of North Carolina owe it to themselves to take hold of the work to end ignorance. It can be ended if our people will stick to the task which the needs of the times have presented squarely to them. North Carolina can move forward in an immense degree if the educational forces of the State co-operate in the very fullest way in which they are competent.—Raleigh News and Observer.

COSMOS

(Communicated.)

The world is sick and things are topsy-turvy. Bryan, the valiant soldier of the Florida campaign, is now a champion quitter and peace-at-any-price-advocate. He can recognize no difference in principle between killing a man and putting him on short rations, and can see in the despoiling of Belgium nothing more than an inevitable vicissitude of war. Roosevelt enlarges his grin and breaks a couple of ribs, while refusing to be interviewed on Mr. Bryan's last prophesy. The German-Americans with one and the same breath defend barbarous war, when committed by the Teutons, and go into rhapsodies over the beauties of peace when aimed at denying the rightful trade of neutrals, if this chances to inure only to the benefit of the Allies. Muenter gets a degree, murders a wife, changes his name, wrecks a senate office, murderously assaults Morgan, and then does what he should have done at first—breaks his own neck.

Meantime, cotton is hanging in the balance.

TALKS ON THRIFT

Prepared Under Auspices of American Bankers' Association.

NO. 27—A THRIFTY NEIGHBOR.

"Any woman who, in an emergency, cannot cook and serve a dinner, make a dress or trim a hat is only half a woman. Economy is no disgrace; any fool can spend money and waste it, but it takes judgment to spend wisely for value received."—Mrs. Arthur G. Learned.

The following is not a piece of summer fiction, but an actual conversation, the names alone being fictitious:

"Dear me! I do feel so happy," said Mrs. Collins as she dropped down into a chair in Mrs. Whitmarsh's parlor. "I've just been down-town shopping. I stopped at the bank and deposited my month's savings. I had ten dollars to deposit."

"I declare," exclaimed Mrs. Whitmarsh, "I don't see how you do it. Your husband doesn't give you a cent more than mine gives me, there aren't any less in your family and you seem to have just as many things as I do. But as for my saving! Why, we are always way behind on some bill or other. How in the world do you do it?"

"Well, you see," said Mrs. Collins, modestly, "my father and mother taught me to save when I was a girl. I began then to put my nickels into a little savings bank. Now whenever I think of a way of saving I always put the difference between what I might have spent and what I do spend right into my bank. If it's only five cents, in it goes, and if it's $2 I make myself put that in, too."

"But where do you save?" interrupted Mrs. Whitmarsh.

"Oh," answered Mrs. Collins. "I'm always on the watch for chances. That's part of the secret. Just the other morning it struck me—for the first time, strange to say—that breakfast cereal might be cheaper by the half dozen. There is only five cents difference when you buy six boxes, but then you save the bother of ordering the six separately.

"I try to make my household expenses for each month come within a certain limit, too, and if at the end of the month I have spent less than I expected, the sum saved goes into my bank. I buy some cheap cuts of meat; for instance, a brisket of beef to boil and press, or pot roasts. You can make ever so many good soups out of the scraps, too, and John is very fond of soup. I make cream soups out of milk and the water in which gevetables are boiled. I dry vegetables, too. Do you know that dried celery leaves make almost as good a soup as the fresh celery itself?

"Potatoes and onions and such things I lay in a supply of in the fall. We have a good vegetable cellar, you know. This last year I put down 40 dozen eggs also. My butter I buy direct from the maker."

"Can you save much on your clothes?" asked Mrs. Whitmarsh.

"I think I save most there by going without things. So often when you think you simply must have a new dress or a new hat you find you really can get along pretty well without. If you do need a new suit it's a good plan to buy it in the off season when things are really marked down. Well, I have talked as if I were the best planner in the world, haven't I? Probably my neighbors wish I would spend more on my clothes, but it does make you feel real rich to have something sure laid by in the bank for the future."—T. D. MacGregor.

STATE LAW PROVIDES FOR SECOND PRIMARY

Except For Nomination of President and Vice President

Majority Required to Nominate and Only Two Aspirants With Highest and Second Highest Can Run in Second Election.

Since the enactment by the last General Assembly of a law providing that on the first Saturday in June next preceding each general election to be held in November for State officers, representatives in Congress, judges, solicitors and members of the General Assembly, a primary election shall be held for the purpose of nominating candidates of each and every political party for these offices, the impression has obtained in many quarters that in the event a candidate for an office does not get a majority in the primary that there will be no second primary.

However, the act provides that nominations for President and Vice President in the several congressional districts shall be determined by a plurality of votes cast but in the case of all other officers nominations shall be determined by a majority of the votes cast. The second primary shall be held four weeks after the first in which only the two aspirants who have received the highest and next highest votes shall be voted for. It is made obligatory upon the aspirant receiving the second highest number of votes to file within five days after the result of the first primary is made officially known a request in writing with the appropriate board of elections that a second primary be held. With five candidates for Congress from the Sixth Congressional district in the field it seems practically certain that in this district it will be necessary to have the second primary next year. In the event that the aspirant receiving the second highest number of votes does not file such notice or shall withdraw and decline to run then the man receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared the nominee.

While the act applies to all counties as to the nomination of National, State and district officers are concerned, a large number of counties are excepted from its provisions so far as county officers and members of the lower house of the General Assembly are concerned, among these being New Hanover, Brunswick and Sampson. New Hanover county already has a primary law which is regarded by many as better than the State law. It is made possible in the State law for any of the counties excepted to become subject to its provision by an election, if as many as one-fifth the voters shall petition the county commissioners for the election and at the election held for this purpose a majority of the votes cast shall be in favor of having the State law become operative as to county officers.

While the dates for the primary for county officers in the counties excepted do not coincide with those in the State law, it seems to be pretty generally understood that an effort will be made in these counties to have the primary at the same time as for the State and district officers in order to facilitate holding them and to prevent unnecessary trouble and expense.

It is provided in the act that the State primary shall be conducted in accordance with the general election laws of the State. On the 10th Saturday preceding each State or district primary election, the State board of elections is instructed to meet and appoint the county boards of elections and on the seventh Saturday before the primary the county boards are authorized to meet and organize and appoint registrars and judges.

In order to defray the expenses of the primary, candidates are required to pay the following named sums at the time of filing notice of candidacy which shall be paid into the State treasury: Congress, $50; Judge of Superior Court, solicitor or any State officer, $20; State senator, $5; county officers, $5.

No person shall be entitled to participate or vote in the primary election of any political party unless he shall be a legal voter or shall be entitled to vote at the next general election and has first declared and had recorded on the registration book that he affiliates with the political party in whose primary he proposes to vote. Each candidate other than for county officers is required to file with the State board of elections at least six weeks before the primary a notice, stating his party affiliation, the office for which he is a candidate and a pledge to abide by the result and to support the party candidate nominated. Candidates are also required to file ten days before and within 20 days after the primary a sworn statement of all monies expended by him or in his behalf during the campaign.

After the time for filing notices by candidates shall have expired, the State Board within three days is empowered to give notice to the county boards and shall without delay, at the expense of the State, have enough official ballots for each party and these shall be distributed to the various county boards. Only these official ballots shall be used in the primary elections and if other ballots are used they will not be counted.

Instead of having the names of the candidates arranged alphabetically as is sometimes the case, it is provided that the ballots shall be so printed that the names of opposing candidates shall so far as practicable alternate in position to the end that each candidate shall occupy the first place on an equal number of ballots. This can be better explained by stating that in the event there were two candidates for an office and one hundred thousand ballots were printed, that on 50,000 of these the name of one candidate would be placed first and on the remaining 50,000 the name of the other candidate would be first, and the ballots thoroughly mixed before being sent out.

In each election precinct there shall be three ballot boxes for each political party, labeled respectively: "National Primary Box," "State Primary Box," and "Legislative Primary Box." In the first votes for President and Vice President of the United States shall be deposited, in the second ballots for State and district offices, and in the third for members of the General Assembly. While an elector is required to declare the political party with which he affiliates and in whose primary he desires to vote he is not required to vote for a candidate for each office unless he so desires, and he may either mark the ballot and place it in the box himself or he may, after having marked it, give the ballot to the registrar or a judge of election to deposit it for him. The right of challenge as to the legal right of a voter to cast a ballot or to his party affiliation may be exercised in the same manner as at general elections.

Provision for the conduct of county elections are similar to those for National and State election. Other provisions deal with the method of counting the votes and certifying the returns which shall be done under the direction of the State Board of elections.

It will be noted that the act makes it discretionary with the voter as to whether or not he casts his ballot in accordance with what is commonly known as the Australian ballot system or shall allow the registrar or judge of elections to cast it for him after he has marked the names of the candidates for whom he wishes to vote. In New Hanover county the Australian ballot system is used altogether and candidates for county offices will be nominated in the same way as in the past and presumably the primary will be held at the same time as the State Primary which will be the first Saturday in next June.

While all parties will have their primaries on the same day and at the same polling places, separate ballot boxes will be used and the votes for each party will be counted separately.

POTTER GETS JURY TRIAL

Charged With Assaulting Clarence Wallace at Delgado—Only Four More Days to Get Badges.

Jim Potter, who is charged with cutting up Clarence Wallace several weeks ago at Delgado, will be tried today before Recorder Empie and a jury of 12 men. Wallace, it will be remembered, was seriously cut and lay in the James Walker Memorial Hospital several days, after which he skipped the country and is now probably in Georgia. Potter has been in jail in default of bond.

Offenders of the dog tax ordinance will be given only four more days of grace in the matter of buying badges. Several cases were brought up yesterday and the badges were shown in court without regard as to when these badges were bought. After the 12th, it will be too late to buy badges when arrests have been made. Policemen are on the job and are arresting violators every day. The Recorder thought it only a trifling offense and when the first few were willing to buy badges, he thought the humiliation of being arrested enough punishment, but so many people have failed to take the warning, he, for the sake of fairness, has served notice that after the 12th of this month, when a badge is shown, the date of purchase must not be after arrest. Fines will be imposed.

Those in court yesterday for this offense were Henry Gause, Josephus Smith, Jim Davis, Sarah Hutton and Annie Rogers, colored, who showed their badges. Cases against Ben Wilkins, Sarah Miller, colored, were not prossed. Emmanuel Love and Annie Cokely, colored, denied ownership of the dogs claimed to be theirs. Cases against E. D. Shipman, Peter Copeland, Mary Fullard and Nora Watson, all colored, were continued.

Arthur Cherry was tried yesterday for abandoning his wife and child. He was required to give a bond of $50 as a guarantee that he would pay to his wife $2 every week.

Herbert Larkin was tried on a charge of assault and battery and his case continued to July 22.

Nora Yates, colored, charged with being a nuisance, was fined $3.40 and taxed with costs amounting to $6.60, making a total payment of $10.

GRAPE JUICE DEMONSTRATION.

Famous Armour Product at J. Hicks Bunting Drug Company's.

For the purpose of giving practical demonstrations of the uses to which the delightful Armour's grape juice may be put, Miss Lulu Fitzpatrick, of Pittsburg, Pa., is now at the store of the J. Hicks Bunting Drug Company, for the remainder of the week, and the public is most cordially invited to the store to sample entirely free of charge some of the delightful summer beverages that are possible with this national temperance drink.

The demonstration is for one week only, so that the call should be made early. Miss Fitzpatrick has a wide knowledge of the possibilities of this healthful preparation and housewives most especially may learn many new uses for the juice, now so universally popular.

The demonstration at Bunting's is in conjunction with the local branch of Armour & Company and during the demonstration which will last through Saturday, free samples and literature will be distributed. Both Messrs. Bunting and the manager of Armour & Co., in this city, extend a most cordial welcome to the demonstration.

DR. WHITE PRESIDENT OF WOOSTER UNIVERSITY

Visited and Conferred With Mr. James Sprunt Regarding Acceptance.)

The College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio, has called Dr. J. Campbell White, now secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, to be president of that institution of learning and it is understood that Dr. White will accept.

Dr. White was in Wilmington this week visiting and conferring with his intimate friend, Mr. James Sprunt, in regard to the matter. The University had been established with intentions that it always be run as a Christian institution and the securing of Dr. White as head will mean much in carrying out these plans.

Dr. White will continue actively in the work of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, but his principal efforts will be directed toward the upbuilding of Wooster University along Christian lines.

TO INSTALL MR. R. J. JONES

SHOWED WRONG DOG BADGE

George Dudley Evidently Effected by Recent Court News.

George Dudley, colored, has probably by this time become aware of the fact that the way of the transgressor is hard. Many of his neighbors and friends had been recently been taken to the Recorder's court and made to show dog badges. Dog badges cost money, and this didn't look very pleasing to George, for he had a dog and no badge. He had noticed that the fellows always got away when they showed their badges and here seemed to be a clue for him to relieve his trouble.

R. P. McClammy, Jr., had a badge for his dog and, from George's point of view, it would be easier for the young fellow to buy another badge than for George to buy it. Poor George didn't know that the policemen kept the number on every badge and could recognize R. P.'s badge from other people's badges. Last night the negro was found in possession of R. P.'s badge that had been reported stolen, and was arrested on two warrants, one charging him with violating the dog tax ordinance and the other charging him with the crime of stealing. The poor negro will have to answer to both charges in the Recorder's court today and may find his dog badge an expensive luxury before he is done with it.

VISITED BATTLEFIELDS.

Wilmington Young Men Return From Visit to France and England.

As far as the eye could see there were graves in which German, English and French soldiers were buried, said Mr. L. S. Everett yesterday in speaking of a visit made by him and Messrs. R. S. McClelland and W. K. Gaylor to the battlefield at Mons which was in the war zone when the great battle of the Marne was fought on French soil last fall. These young men returned to Wilmington Tuesday afternoon after spending several weeks in Havre, Paris and London.

They left Wilmington in April as passengers on the City of Savannah which carried a cargo of cotton to Havre, France. They returned to New York on the same steamer on which they made the trip across and had no excitement of any kind.

They went over a considerable part of the territory on which the battle of the Marne was fought. They saw villages that had been wrecked by shot and shell. They saw mammoth trees that had been cut down by shells and others through which bullets had pierced. They gained a vivid impression of the horrors of war.

DIES AT MIDDLE SOUND.

Nineteen-Month-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Farrow.

The tenderest sympathy of many friends goes out to Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Farrow, of Middle Sound, in the death of their little 19-month-old son, Ernest Lyman Farrow, who died yesterday morning at the home of his parents. Funeral services will be held this morning at 9 o'clock from the residence and interment will take place at Oakdale cemetery.

On Charge of Larceny.

Joe Wilson, alias Sinkey Joe, colored, who has long been a landmark in the Recorder's court on various charges of theft, was arrested last night, accused of stealing a coat from A. Dlugin. He is in the police lockup and will probably get a hearing before the Recorder this morning.

Summer: Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, redness or roughness, often freckles, too, the sensible thing to do is to remove such surface. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently, gradually, so there's no inconvenience, no detention indoors. Spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, use it for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view, your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry breeds more wrinkles. Banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz. dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective.

TRUCKERS TO MEET TONIGHT

Shipments of Products to Northern Markets Practically Ended—Cantaloupes Now Moving.

The quarterly meeting of the Wilmington Co-operative Truckers' Association will be held at the Court House tonight. All the local branches will be represented at the Court House tonight. One of the matters to be discussed is that of having a picnic this summer similar to the one last year which proved to be such a success. Another matter will be the election of a general manager for the ensuing year. Mr. C. E. Haskett, who has managed the affairs of the association with splendid success this season, will present his report with such recommendations as he deems necessary.

The season for shipment of truck to Northern markets has practically ended. For the last several weeks cucumbers have been going forward in large quantities but the prices have dropped now to a point where it is no longer profitable to ship them. The quality of the late cucumbers has not been so good and this has caused the prices to decline still more than would have been the came with a better product.

Cantaloupes are now being shipped in large quantities from points along the Wilmington and Weldon road, the shipments being made in cars in conjunction with huckleberries, corn, peppers and other vegetables. Carlot shipments from these points will begin moving the latter part of the week.

The cantaloupe movement from the Fayetteville and Laurinburg sections is now very active and a number of cars have gone forward and will continue for the next several weeks. The prices are considered good and the yield is expected to be up to the average. The quality of the melons is considered good.

New Hanover products practically no cantaloupes for shipment to Northern markets.

MANY COPS WILL ATTEND.

Annual Excursion to Carolina Beach to be Biggest Yet.

The committee on arrangements for the 17th annual excursion by Wilmington policemen to Carolina Beach July 14th report that a great number of tickets have already been sold and that an extra large attendance is expected. Mayor Moore and Councilman Hall will both be on hand and deliver speeches. The happy time will be whiled away with games, contests, racing, shooting, etc. The cops are all anticipating a huge time next Wednesday.

LITTLE ELIZABETH POWELL CELEBRATES HER BIRTHDAY.

Whiteville, N. C., July 6.—At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Powell, dainty Miss Elizabeth McKinnon Powell celebrated her third birthday on the afternoon of July the 5th. Eleven of her little friends arrived at her home at half past five o'clock to enjoy her party with her. The hostess, dressed in a charming little pink frock which struck the color note of the occasion, met her guests at the steps. After a short while spent in play, the children were called into the dining room, where a table, just high enough to serve tiny tots, was spread. Pink "sunbonnet babes" marked the places and were used in all the appointments of the table. A birthday cake, on which three candles burned, and around which pink flowers were massed, occupied the center of the table. For each little guest there was a pink basket filled with pink and white candies. Refreshments of ice cream and cake, in the prevailing pink and white, were served. At the end of the party supper, each guest was instructed to pull a pink ribbon which lay by each plate. When this was done, each child found a favor at the other end of the ribbon. Up to this time the favors had been hidden under the decorations around the birthday cake.

Then it was the hour for going home, and eleven happy children departed leaving good wishes behind for their hostess.

MISS BRIDGERS BRIDE OF LIEUT. J. F. FARLEY, JR.

A social event of wide interest throughout the State was the marriage yesterday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock of Miss Routh P. Bridgers, daughter of Mrs. P. L. Bridgers, to Lieut. Joseph F. Farley, Jr., of the coast guard cutter service and for the last two years attached to the Seminole at this port. The beautiful home of the bride on South Third street was the scene of the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Dr. William H. Milton, rector of St. James' Episcopal church.

Mrs. Walter Lamar Alexander, of Charlotte, twin sister of the bride, was the dame of honor and Mr. R. H. Grant, of Wilmington, was the best man. These were the only attendants, the wedding being very quiet. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert H. Bridgers.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion, the decorations being beautifully arranged in the drawing room, where the vows were said, with pink roses, and in the dining room in pink and green. The spacious halls of the home were also beautifully decorated. Grainger's orchestra played the wedding march and also during the informal reception which followed the ceremony.

The bride looked lovely in a pretty gown of white satin and tulle and wore a veil that was used by her grandmother at her wedding. She carried a shower bouquet of white lilies of the valley. The dame of honor was attired in a white and black chiffon with pink hat and carried a bouquet of pink lotos lilies.

After the informal reception which was attended only by those present at the wedding, Lieut. and Mrs. Farley left on the evening train for their bridal tour. They will spend two months in the Adirondacks in New York state and upon their return will make their home in this city.

The bride is widely known and is prominent in social circles. She has a host of friends in Wilmington and elsewhere. Lieutenant Farley since he came to Wilmington has made many friends and is very popular.

The wardroom officers of the coast guard cutter Seminole gave an informal tea on board the vessel Tuesday afternoon in honor of the bride-to-be. A number of guests from the city were present and it was a most delightful affair.

Among those from out of the city here to attend the wedding was Miss Louise Wright, of Raleigh.

FILLYAW-McCLAMMY WEDDING YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

One of the most attractive and charming home weddings of the summer in Wilmington took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. McClammy, No. 422 South Front street, when their daughter, Miss Mae Lillie McClammy, became the bride of Mr. Owen Clanton Fillyaw. The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. T. Mattox, pastor of Fourth Street Advent Christian church.

The lower floor of the home was thrown open en suite and was beautifully decorated for the occasion with roses, ferns, Southern smilax and stately palms. The vows were said before an improvised altar, erected in the bay windows of the parlor, the effect being made most impressive by the soft glow of tiny candles.

Miss Eunice Tucker skilfully presided at the piano and rendered several pleasing selections prior to the marriage ceremony, these including Schubert's Serenade and "O Thou Sublime, Sweet Evening Star."

As the bridal party entered the room from the stairway the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was played and while the vows were being said, "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, was played softly.

First came little Miss Laura Hay, attired in a lovely dress of organdie and lace, carrying a basket filled with rose petals, followed by little Miss Henrietta Hay, gowned similarly to the little flower girl, bearing the ring in a silver waiter.

Next came the bridesmaids, Miss Thelma Fillyaw, sister of the groom, and Miss Hattie King, both gowned in pale green chiffon with rosebud trimmings and carrying white carnations and ferns. They were met at the foot of the stairs in the reception hall by the groomsmen, Messrs. Harry Morris and Joseph LeMoyne, these taking their places on either side of the altar.

Then came Miss Lillian Reaves as maid of honor, who was attired in white tulle over messaline and carried white Bride roses.

The bride never looked more charming than she did as she descended the stairway on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She was dressed in a lovely coat suit of gray worn over a gray chiffon waist with hat and gloves to match. She carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses and lilies of the valley.

They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Leon S. Noel, of Newbern. The impressive ring ceremony was used.

A reception was given immediately following the wedding, this being a most delightful affair. Miss Eleanor Bessellieu, gowned in white net, presided gracefully at the punch bowl. Those serving in the dining room were Misses Lillie, Rosa and Lizzie Culpepper, of Wilson, and Thelma Brooks, Katherine King and Edna Davis, of this city, and Mrs. C. W. Stonebanks, of Jacksonville, Fla. They were attired in lingerie dresses.

As the guests arrived for the wedding they were received at the door by Mrs. T. Y. Morris, sister of the groom, and Mrs. J. E. Sharp.

The bride and groom after receiving the cordial congratulations of the guests went to the union station and left on the northbound train for an extended bridal tour through Western North Carolina. After their return they will be at home to their many friends at No. 423 South Front street.

Mrs. Fillyaw by her charming manner and pleasing personality has endeared herself to a host of friends. Mr. Fillyaw is a young civil engineer who has a bright future and is very popular with all who know him.

As a slight evidence of the esteem in which the young couple are held there were many beautiful bridal presents received.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mrs. A. R. Hilburn and daughter, and Miss Julia Pridgen, all of Currie.

ONE-STEP DANCING CONTEST TONIGHT

A one-step contest will be the special attraction at Lumina tonight. This will be the first of these contest dances to be given this season. Contest dances were a very popular feature at Lumina last year, and the dance tonight will no doubt prove equally as attractive.

The contest tonight will be conducted in a similar manner as the dances given last year. The judges selected to pass upon the dancing will select the winning couple by eliminating, as the contest proceeds, the less skilful dancers.

The contest tonight will begin at 9 o'clock and will probably last about 30 minutes. There will be three judges to judge the dancing. A prize will be given to the couple whom the judges decide are the most skilful dancers. There will be consolation prizes for the dancers in the finals. The contest tonight will be in charge of Don Richardson, who conducted the dances so successfully last season. As these dances furnish a great deal of entertainment for the spectators a large attendance is expected tonight.

HOLT IDENTIFIED AS ERICH MUENTER

These detectives have come to me and asked me all kinds of questions and they have been bothering me day and night. I must get sleep. I have got an important statement to make tomorrow and I must be able to convince people that what I say is true."

O'Ryan said Holt turned over on his side and remained there for about an hour. At the end of that time O'Ryan heard a noise in the next corridor. He glanced at Holt and saw he had changed his position so he was facing the door, but apparently was sleeping. O'Ryan then crept, he says, on his hands and knees down the corridor to check a disturbance so Holt might sleep. He looked into the other corridor and found there was nothing there. As he was about to start back O'Ryan said he heard a noise that sounded like a revolver shot.

I ran back to the cell and said to myself 'He's done it. Somebody slipped him a gun.' I looked into his cell and did not see him. Then I thought that may be he had been shot from the outside. I said to myself, 'He might me,' so I drew by revolver and went to the cell expecting him to jump at me. It was dark and I could not see him. I tripped and fell. When I looked down I saw that I had fallen over his body."

Martin Littleton Convinced.

Martin W. Littleton, who had been retained as counsel for Holt, reached Mineola today and examined Holt's cell closely. Mr. Littleton climbed up the iron bars on the side of the cell as Holt apparently had done before committing suicide to see if it were possible for a man to kill himself in that manner. Mr. Littleton was convinced that it was.

William Hulse, warden of the Nassau county jail, issued the following statement today:

"Holt met his death by plunging from the bars of his cell. He fell 18 feet. His keeper, O'Ryan, was in charge of him and I always believed that O'Ryan was a trustworthy man. His orders from me were never to take his eyes off the prisoner. He was told that if he wanted anything he should rap on the bars with a club and that his summons would be answered by another keeper.

"In running along the corridor to see what the disturbance was, O'Ryan disobeyed my positive orders. But I did not employ O'Ryan,; he was employed by Sheriff Stephen P. Pettit."

IDENTIFIED LAST FALL

By Man From Chicago Who Knew Him and Saw Him at Cornell.

Chicago, July 7.—Identification of Frank Holt, the assailant of J. P. Morgan, as Erich Muenter, the missing Harvard professor suspected of having caused the death of his wife, was made today by Prof. Chester N. Gould, of the University of Chicago. Professor Gould issued a statement admitting he had identified Muenter, who was a former student at the University of Chicago, while at Cornell University last November. He said he decided for several reasons not to expose the man "as he seemed to be getting along nicely and I thought it was better to let well enough alone."

MOTIVE FOR SUICIDE.

Growing Fear That He Would Soon be Identified as Muenter.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 7. — That the suicide last night of Frank Holt, who shot J. P. Morgan last Saturday, after setting off a bomb in the Capitol last Friday, was caused by his growing fear that he was soon to be identified as Erich Muenter, alleged wife murderer, was the statement made here tonight by District Attorney Lewis J. Smith, of Nassau county.

"Holt," he said, "evidently felt the web of identification that was being woven about him, and thought it best to kill himself before he was confronted with the evidence that he was Muenter."

However, an incident which the authorities were free to admit does not strengthen their belief that Holt was Muenter, occurred here tonight when Thomas J. Reidy, attorney of record for Holt, received from Holt's relatives in Dallas, information necessary to get a death certificate. It said that Holt was born near Milwaukee, Wis., and that his father's name was Frank Holt and his mother's name unknown.

Muenter, the authorities recalled, was born in Germany. The inquest into Holt's death will be held in Hempstead tomorrow, it was announced.

Both District Attorney Smith and Coroner Jones declared that it would be purely a formal affair.

Negligence Apparent.

District Attorney Smith declared tonight that while he believed some one was negligent last night in permitting the door to Holt's cell to remain open, there will be no further investigation.

Warden Hulse explained that he had permitted Jeremiah O'Ryan, the keeper, to keep the door open because O'Ryan did not know the combination of the lever which opened all the cell doors simultaneously. He had directed O'Ryan to sit before Holt's cell and keep his eyes on the prisoner, he said.

Late tonight Reidy said that the limited finances of Holt proved to him conclusively that the man was not operating with any one. When he left Cornell, Reidy said, Holt had $800. Of this he gave his wife $600 to buy a lot in Texas. Holt had but $30 of the remaining $200 on him when arrested, Reidy said.

fused to issue a death certificate and the medical examiner, believing that the circumstances justified an autopsy, sent the woman's stomach to the Harvard Medical School for analysis.

In the meantime Muenter urged that he be allowed to take the body to Chicago for burial, and the medical examiner permitted him to do so and issued a certificate ascribing death to stomach trouble following child birth. Muenter did not return to Cambridge.

Futile Search Begun.

Within ten days the chemist reported the presence of poison in digestive organs, and the futile search for Muenter was begun. Soon afterwards a grand jury returned an indictment accusing the missing instructor of having poisoned his wife.

Two months after Muenter's disappearance his colleagues here received copies of a pamphlet entitled "Protest," which contained a discussion of the charges against him followed by a rambling analysis of existing social conditions and the treatment of those accused of crime without proof.

On the latter subject the writer said in part:

"Take my case. Even without the process of law, the spirit of revenge and persecution of the law which our newspapers so brightly and painfully reflect, has branded me as a criminal. In the eyes of all who read the atrocious acts in the daily papers, I am a brutal murderer, a thing to be despised and to be shuddered at, an outcast of society, an enemy of the community, a wild beast that must be hunted down and be either killed or caged up, 'for the safety of the community.' The lesson that you teach me I will execute, and it shall go hard, but I will better by the instruction. Without knowing whether I am innocent or guilty, you have reviled me, you have cast me out. If I do not strain every nerve to get revenge, the bloodiest, the most brutal kind of revenge, let me never respect myself any more. I can never prove my innocence to you. My only witness is dead. Hence, if I could annihilate all of Chicago and Cambridge at one blow that would be the thing to do. You wish to annihilate me. I must anticipate you."

COTTON REACHED LOW LEVEL

Yesterday's Prices on October Contracts Fell to the Lowest Prices Reached in the Big Break in May.

NewYork, July 7.—There was a sharp decline in the cotton market today with October contracts selling off to 9.46, or $1 per bale below the closing prices of yesterday and back to the lowest price reached on the big break of last May. The close was steady at a net decline of 14 to 22 points.

Early fluctuations were rather nervous and irregular. Liverpool was lower than due, while the weather map showed clearing conditions in the South and the market here opened at a decline of 1 to 2 points in consequence, and active months soon sold some 4 to 6 points net lower under scattered liquidation and local pressure. Rallies of 3 or 4 points were barely maintained, and when the weekly weather report failed to create any fresh buying power, offerings became more active and general. Weakness in the stock market and renewed uneasiness over political conditions served to unsettle the market. The trade buying which has recently shown itself around 9.60 for October was very little in evidence and covering by recent sellers appeared to be about the only support on the break of 16 to 22 points from las night's closing figures. Closing prices were within a point or two of the lowest on all months except October and December, which rallied 4 or 5 points on ordering.

The futures market closed steady.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET

Prices Tended Downward and the Close Was at a Loss.

New Orleans, July 7.—The cotton market started today's session at a decline and closed steady at a net loss of 17 to 19 points, which was within a point of the lowest of the day. Better weather over the belt, more favorable weekly crop reports than expected and poor cables started the downward trend of prices but the main depressing influence of the day was the rumor that the steamship Adriatic had been sunk. This caused heavy selling for both accounts, under which prices broke sharply to new low levels for the present downward movement of the market.

In the early trading prices lost about 6 points in moderate selling stimulated by poor cables. The detailed weather reports noted rain at only nine stations in the entire belt and this created the impression that the crop situation had taken a turn for the better.

Cotton futures closing: July 8.91; October 9.32; December 9.50; January 9.60; March 9.80.

COTTON CONDITIONS FAVORABLE

Announcement of Weekly National Weather and Drop Bulletin.

Washington, July 7.—Cotton conditions continued favorable during the week just ended, the National Weather and Crop Bulletin announced today.

"In the Northern portions of the cotton belt the weather was too cool for rapid growth," said the bulletin, "and wet weather delayed proper cultivation, especially in Oklahoma, Mississippi, and portions of some other states. The drought in Texas was largely relieved, and cotton made satisfactory growth in that as well as in most other states of the belt. Boll weevil continue to increase in Texas and are reported from several other sections."

STOCKS WERE DEPRESSED

Increased Liquidation Mainly for Foreign Interests—New Low Records in High Grade Railroad Issues.

New York, July 7.—Increased liquidation mainly for foreign interests was the outstanding and depressing feature of today's active stock market with new low records in a number of high-grade railway issues. The selling, according to current report, came chiefly from London, but was said to be of French origin. In a measure, the downward tendency was accelerated by uneasiness arising from the situation between this country and Germany.

As a whole, shares of the railroads comprising the Southern group were most adversely affected. Louisville & Nashville fell 3 1-2 points to 105 1-2; Atlantic Coast Line 6 points to 98; Illinois Central 7 to 99, and Southern Railway preferred 4 1-2 to 46 1-2. With the exception of Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Railway, these prices represent the lowest quotations in many years.

All parts of the lists were affected in greater or less demand, but United States Steel held more steady than any of the leaders, recovering half of its two point loss.

Europe's sales of our bonds continued in large volume. Total sales, par value, were $2,555,000. United States bonds unchanged on call.

WILL NOT PREVENT THE RETURN HOME

Montenegrins Will be Allowed to Proceed.

THE AGENTS ARE HELD

Montenegrin Government Representatives Will Be Tried for Breaking This Country's Neutrality Laws.

Washington, July 7.—Although Department of Justice officials are confident they have nipped in the bud a plan to ship large numbers of Montenegrins back to their native country to join the colors, it was said tonight there was no present intention of preventing the departure of Montenegrins who already have been induced to start for home.

Efforts of the government, it was said, are to be carried chiefly toward the conviction of charges of violating the neutrality laws of the three or four representatives of the Montenegrin government who are charged with inducing their countrymen to enlist and to return home.

The activity of the department leading to these arrests is a part of the general effort to prevent enlistments in the United States for the armies of belligerent European nations. Officials called attention today to the fact that the criminal code plainly prohibits enlistment in this country "of any person" to bear arms against a friendly people.

Word received here today said indictments were expected in San Francisco against five men charged with securing recruits in the United States for the British army.

It became known that B. Martinovitch, one of the Montenegrins arrested in Bisbee, Ariz., spent some time in Washington about a month ago and talked with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, about the observance of American neutrality in endeavoring to have Montenegrins return for military service. Martinovitch was told of laws covering such matters and also was informed that during previous foreign wars reservists had left the United Statese in large numbers.

Officials of the British embassy declared no consular agent or diplomatic officer of the British government had engaged in securing enlistment in this country.

"Low yields show lack of method or fertility—one or both—and mean low social conditions.

"Despite some theorists, the fact remains that big acre yields and big crops carry prosperity in their wake."

Need of co-operation between bankers and farmers, death to "cut-throat competition" and the establisment of a national platform aiming to bring farming and banking closer, was emphasized at the opening session.

Declaring co-operation indispensable in business, David R. Fogan, president of the Chicago Clearing House, contrasted two fundamental business principles, suspicious competition and commercial co-operation. He pointed out that the former results in misunderstanding, opposition and war and the latter in peace, harmony and prosperity.

"Labor and capital and all interests have come more fully to a realization that all are inter-dependent, that the country needs all of them and that they cannot live without each other," said Mr. Forgan.

BODY ATTACHMENT ISSUED AGAINST MRS. EVELYN THAW

She Will Be Required to Testify Against Her Husband.

New York, July 7.—A body attachment was issued by Supreme Court Justice Hendrick today for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who failed to appear to testify yesterday in the sanity trial of her husband, Harry K. Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw came down from her summer camp in the Adirondacks yesterday and told Deputy Attorney General Cook she could not stand the strain of testifying, and did not propose to testify against her husband. She left for the Adirondacks last night.

When court opened today Dr. Bernard Livingston, Mrs. Thaw's physician, was called to the stand. He said he had found Mrs. Thaw in a nervous condition and advised her it would be unwise for her to testify. At that point Justice Hendrick interrupted and said that if the attorney general desired that Mrs. Thaw be present that he would issue a body-attachment. Deputy Attorney General Becker immediately asked that such an attachment be issued.

Tonight Sheriff Griffenhagen and two deputies left for Mrs. Thaw's camp with the body attachment. They expected to bring Mrs. Thaw here on Friday.

Susan Merrill occupied the witness stand most of the day and testified as to Thaw's conduct while he lived at a rooming house she conducted here.

Deputy Attorney General Becker read into the records exhibits relative to Thaw's mental condition.

SUBMARINES WILL BE EQUIPPED WITH GUNS

The increase in size, speed and cruising radius of submarines in the last few years has made it imperative that they carry armament in addition to their torpedo tubes.

The German boats mount powerful rifles, as they have demonstrated recently by shelling British merchantmen. No navy in the world has a better weapon of the kind than the ordnance bureau has evolved, according to the secretary. The new gun is shorter than the regular three-inch navy rifle to meet space limitations. This reduces its range, somewhat, but it has been fitted for high-angle fire, which will give it some chance for use against aeroplanes.

The big cruiser submarines authorized by the last Congress probably will be armed with two or more rifles, possibly of 4-inch calibre.

SEVEN PLEAD GUILTY OF ELECTION FRAUDS

Men of Prominence Arraigned at Indianapolis.

There Are 132 Indictments for Violating the Election Laws of Indiana. Request for Change of Venue is Granted.

Indianapolis, July 7.—Seven of the 132 men who were facing charges of election frauds in the registration, primary and election of 1914, pleaded guilty when arraigned in criminal court here today. One hundred and thirteen others, including Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committeeman; Joseph E. Bell, mayor of Indianapolis, and Samuel Perrott, chief of police, asked for a change of venue from Judge James A. Collins.

Of the other defendants, some are in prison, some sick, and others have not been arrested. Those who pleaded guilty are Nelson Hughes, Robert Board, Charles Gibbs, John W. Lee, Earl Clifford, Edward O'Leary and Bernard Rickleman, all political workers or election officials.

Rickleman, Lee, Board and Gibbs were released on their own recognizance by Judge Collins until they are called in for sentence. Clifford is serving a term in the workhouse and Hughes is in the county jail.

Judge Collins told those who asked for a change of venue, he would select five members from the Marion county bar from which list one will be chosen, next Friday, to try the cases. In asking for a change of venue attorneys said they understood Judge Collins had been a witness before the indictment grand jury.

Taggart Demands Trial.

"This whole business is a persecution and not a prosecution and I demand an immediate trial," said Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committeeman from Indiana, after 120 of the 131 men charged with frauds in election had been arraigned and seven had pleaded guilty.

"I never had anything to do with any of the men who pleaded guilty today," declared Taggart. "I do not know these men and it seems odd that they should be permitted to go on their own recognizance if they are so guilty. I don't know what I have been indicted for, although I have made every effort to find out. I want an immediate trial because this whole thing is an effort to besmirch my name as well as many of my friends."

Mayor Joseph E. Bell, who also was among those indicted, issued a statement saying:

"The pleading guilty of the seven men today, is an effort to connect us with men with whom we never have had any dealings in any way whatsoever. These men came into court and pleaded guilty without the indictment being read. They were released immediately on their recognizance and this seems rather unusual."

Besides the 120 who were arraigned today, eight have not been arrested. Two are in prison, one is out of the state, but has promised to return, and the other five are believed to have been designated indictment by wrong names.

After motion for a change of venue to another judge was filed Judge Collins fixed Friday as the date when attorneys for the State and defense will select a judge to try the case. They will choose from a list of five lawyers prepared by Judge Collins. The motion for a change of venue was signed by 106 of the defendants. They will have a separate trial from those who did not ask for a change.

A stir was caused in the court room when Charles Gibbs announced that he wished to plead guilty. His name had appeared in the list of those who would be defended by the attorneys for Taggart, Bell, Perrott and others. Gibbs told the court that he had signed a request to be represented by these attorneys but wished to plead guilty. A controversy between Gibbs, the lawyers and the judge ended when Gibbs' name was stricken from the list and his plea of guilty accepted.

FURTHER COMPLICATIONS AS TO SHIPMENT OF COAL TAR.

Further Annoyance to Textile Industry Reported to Uncle Sam.

Washington, July 7.—Further complications in the efforts of American textile manufacturers to induce Germany to permit shipments of coal tar direct to the United States were reported to the Department of Commerce today by Commercia Attache Thompson, assigned to Berlin, but now at The Hague.

Barring American cotton from Germany by the British order in council was the primary obstacle in the way of gaining German assent to shipments and now to that has been added reports of the exporting of American dyestuffs to Great Britain. Until the ban is removed from cotton, officials are convinced, Germany will not permit exporting of coal tar products loaded by American manufacturers.

Department of Commerce officials began an investigation after receipt of the latest advices from Mr. Thompson declaring coal tar products were not involved in the reported shipments to Great Britain because they consisted only of vegetable dyes manufactured in the United States. Germany will be informed of this in continued efforts to obtain coal tar products.

Commerce officials have been active since the outbreak of war in Europe in attempting to solve problems arising from shortage of coal tar dyes. A committee of experts of the department is conferring with the Federal trade commission to arrange to assure the stability of the growing domestic dye industry when on the restoration of peace American manufacturers have to face German competition.

ta's return to Mexico, complicating the situation there.

Several messages were exchanged today between the Department of Justice and Federal Attorney Camp at El Paso. Mr. Camp, it is understood, is thoroughly familiar with conditions on the border and it is believed it was has suggestion that the case be disposed of without further legal proceedings.

TRADE COMMISSION TO MAKE TOUR OF COUNTRY

In Connection With Foreign Trade Investigation.

Exporting Manufacturers and Various Commercial and Industrial Organizations Will be Consulted Regarding Exports.

Washington, July 7. — The Federal Trade Commission today announced it would tour the country in connection with its foreign trade investigation. The commission will begin hearings in Chicago July 19, and after a week or ten days there will visit other points in the Middle West. Several weeks will be spent on the Pacific coast, and on the return trip the commission will visit Southwestern and Southern cities, it was announcedo today by the Federal Trade Commission. Hearings will be begun in Chicago July 19, and the commission will travel for nearly two months, completing its inquiry into the export trade situation.

Exporting manufacturers will be examined and asked for suggestions as to the best means of building up the country's export trade. Various commercial and industrial organizations will be consulted to secure a general view of export conditions.

During the tour the commission will hold closed hearings at various points on informal complaints which have been filed charging business concerns with "unfair competition."

From Chicago the commission will go to other cities of the middle west. Later hearings will be held in the export cities of the east coast.

The itinerary for the return trip has not yet been completed, but it is expected Louisville, Atlanta and other cities of the South and Southwest will be visited.

ger truce cannot be arranged food will have to be brought from outside.

There is perfect agreement among all Mexicans in this section and there is hope that American authorities will find means to stop criminal exploitation of food stuffs from this famine land while the country was skinned of the bulk of its products months ago. Some provisions are still trickling over the border into land of plenty."

FOOD RIOTS CHECKED.

An Improvement of Conditions in Mexico City Reported.

Washington, July 7.—Dispatches from Mexico City to the State Department tonight dated July 4 and transmitted by courier to Vera Cruz, announced that food riots in the capital had been checked and a general improvement in conditions had occurred. Shortage of food still was serious, however, and the dispatches said a feeling of unrest likely to lead to chaos prevailed.

No mention was made of the military situation. At the time the courier left General Pablo Gonzales, commanding the attacking Carranza army was waiting for reinforcements. Messages from Vera Cruz since then have stated that the assault was renewed July 5.

Although the Zapata forces are said to number about 25,000 men they are short of arms and ammunition and officials here would not be surprised to hear at any time that they had evacuated or been driven from the city. General Carranza has given assurances that every consideration will be shown non-combatants by his army.

TORNADO AND CLOUD BURST STRIKES PART OF MISSOURI.

Damage to Property Estimated at Not Less Than Half Million.

St. Louis, July 7.—A tornado and cloud burst which swept St. Louis and St. Charles counties late today caused damage which may aggregate half a million dollars, isolated several small towns, blew half a passenger train off the tracks and deluged parts of the affected district with four inches of rain in half an hour.

Five persons are believed to have been killed during the storm and a woman and child who entered the Borromeo church at St. Charles just before it was demolished had not been accounted for at midnight. Mrs. Thomas Slattery and her two children were killed when their home at Daronne was wrecked, reports from that place said. Wentseville and Gilmore each reported one man killed. At St. Peter, Mo., there was heavy property damage.

Between Gilmore and Wentzville the tornado struck a Wabash passenger train bound from St. Louis to Kansas City and hurled four cars off the track. The five passenger coaches left on the track were coupled to the engine and the train proceeded. From Montgomery City the crew wired General Manager Cotter that no one was hurt seriously.

TEN PERSONS KILLED WHEN TROLLEY CAR JUMPS TRACK

Car Loaded With Excursionists Rolls Down Embankment.

Queenstown, Ont., July 7.—Ten persons were killed and a score injured tonight when a trolley car on the International Railways line jumped the track at a curve on the sharp incline leading from Queenstown Height into the village and rolled down a steep embankment. The car was carrying a crowd of Toronto excursionists to the boat landing here. Late tonight the only body which had been identified was that of Dorothy Keats, 7 years old.

The car was so completely crushed that the work of extricating the injured was distrissingly slow. There were about thirty-five passengers on the car and only one or two escaped injury. Eight dead were taken from the wreckage, and two of the injured, one of them a girl of 16, died while being carried from the car to an ambulance at Niagara Falls.

Passengers said that the car seemed to buckle in the center before it left the rails. The car was virtually in two sections when it stopped. There was a long delay in getting the dead and injured into Queenstown and Niagara Falls. Special cars were rushed from both ends of the line. The more seriously injured were taken to the general hospital at Niagara Falls and those moved after receiving first aid were carried on board the Toronto steamer which was held at the dock.

ADMITS RECEIVING LETTER.

Mrs. Holt Tells Attorney of Correspondence From Husband.

Dallas, Texas, July 7.—Admission that Mrs. Frank Holt received a letter yesterday from her husband intimating that he had planned to blow up one or more trans-Atlantic liners with timed bombs, was made today by Mrs. Holt's attorney here, J. E. Cockrell. Mrs. Holt had previously denied receiving the letter.

"The proper authorities were notified immediately," explained Mr. Cockrell, "and for that reason nothing was made public about that feature of the letter."

Mrs. Holt was told this forenoon that her husband had taken his life.

"My daughter was prepared for anything and at first appeared calm," said Mr. Sensabaugh, "but later went off into a room by herself. She came out after a short while and since has been very calm."

Holt will be buried at Ithaca, N. Y., Mr. Sensabaugh announced, saying his daughter wanted the ceremony simple as possible.

Radio messages immediately were sent to the commandern of the two vessels by the navy department and officials of the lines here were notified. It was believed that Holt had written the warning just prior to his attack on Mr. Morgan at the financier's home near Glen Cove Saturday.

The belief that Holt was Erich Muenter, fugitive Harvard instructor and alleged wife-murderer was strengthened here today by identification of the dead man as Muenter by three men who knew Muenter. These men went to the morgue at Mineola, accompanied by detectives who spent a busy day delving into Holt's past in an effort to trace his possible accomplice or accomplices and to learn the whereabouts of dynamite owned by Holt still unaccounted for.

No More Explosives Located.

Commissioner Woods, directing the search, said tonight that so far his men had been unable to locate any more of the explosives.

The police learned today that Holt had purchased two hundred sticks of dynamite here and that these explosives contained 40 per cent. dynamite. The dynamite found in Holt's trunk here last night was of the 60 per cent. variety.

Late tonight Commissioner Woods announced that he had learned that Holt had traveled extensively through Mexico and Tennessee and that there are a number of letters from various parts of the country now in Ithaca addressed to Holt which he has requested be sent here.
